Which roads can you cycle on?

You can cycle on low-traffic side roads, medium-traffic main roads, forest roads and cycle paths separated from car traffic. Because of the forest sections in the Börzsöny, we recommend the route mainly for experienced cyclists.

TOP 3 attractions

Forest Railway of Királyrét

If you're a railway enthusiast, hop on a train at Kismaros on the Királyréti Forest Railway, which takes you through Börzsönyliget and Szokolya to Királyrét. The forest railway line was built in 1893 by Count Henrik Francken-Sierstorpff to make it easier to transport timber from his forest estate in Királyrét. At the terminus of the forest railway in Királyrét, you can also try the round-rail track: a 750-metre-long circular track with a four-person railway bicycle.

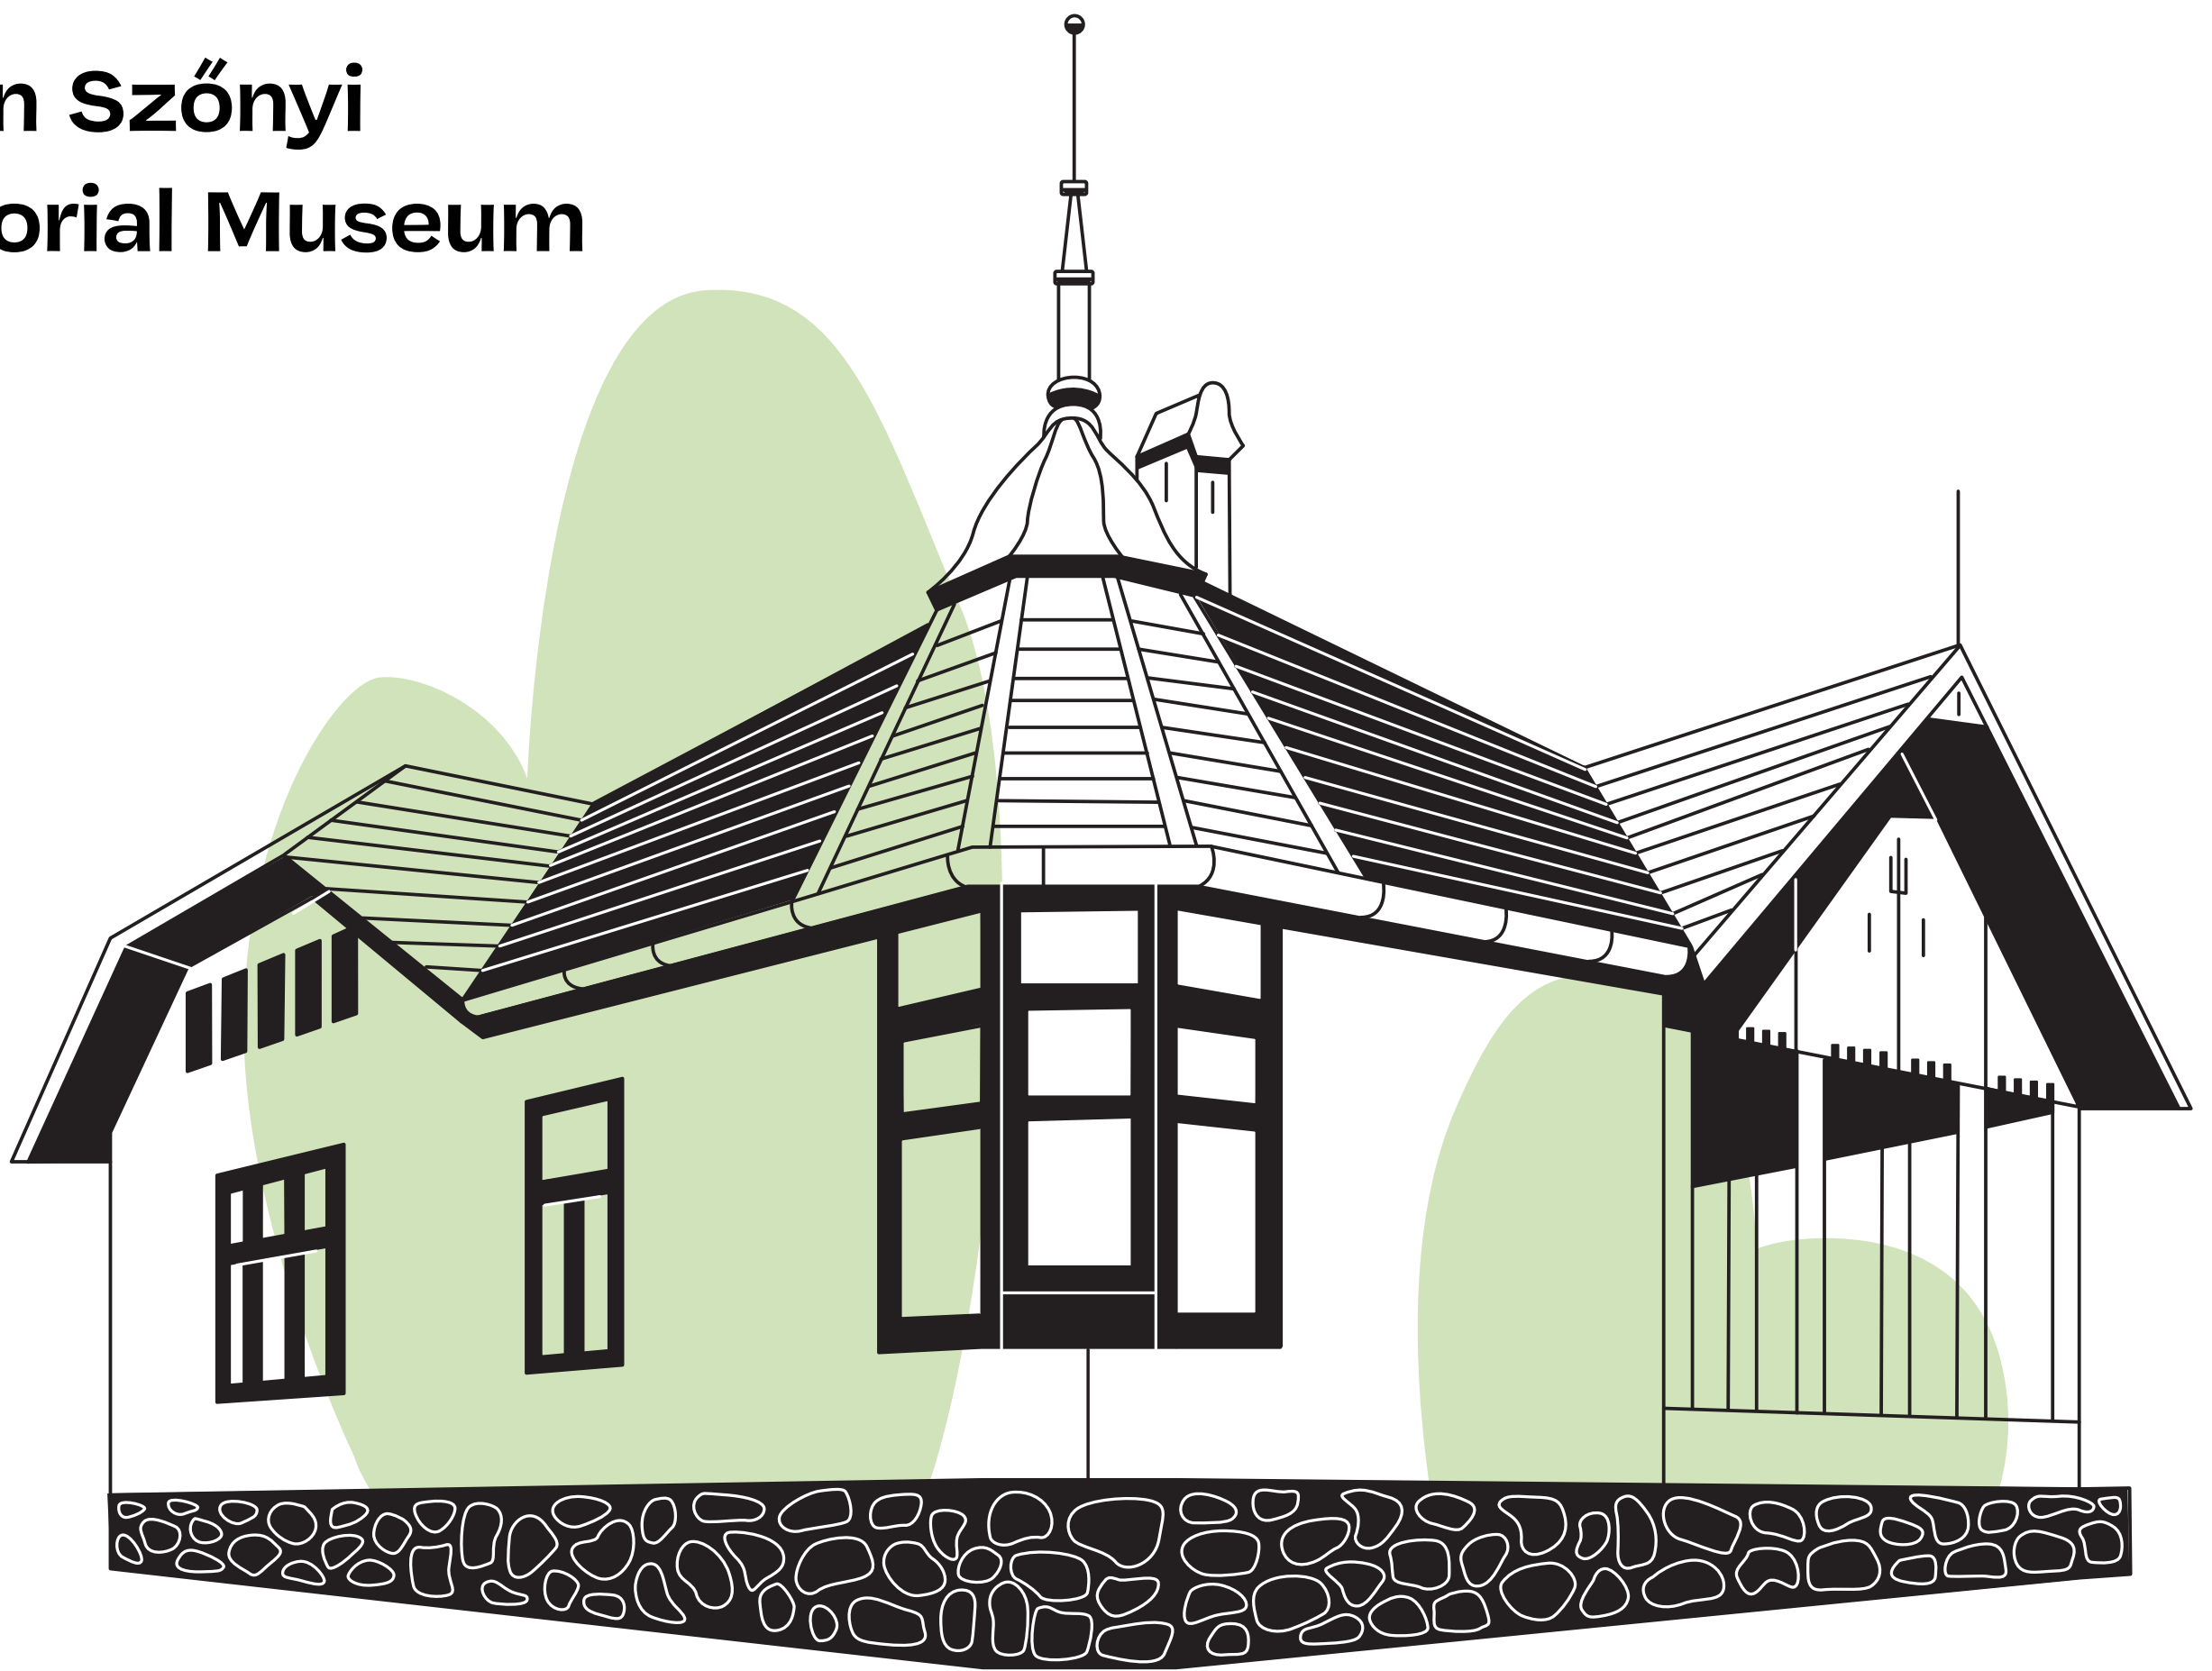

Nagybörzsöny

One of the most picturesque villages in the region, with a range of attractions. See the Romanesque church of St Stephen, built in the 13th century and surrounded by a stone wall, the still-operational water mill, and the Mining Church and the country house, which tells the story of local crafts, mining and wine-making.

Zebegeény

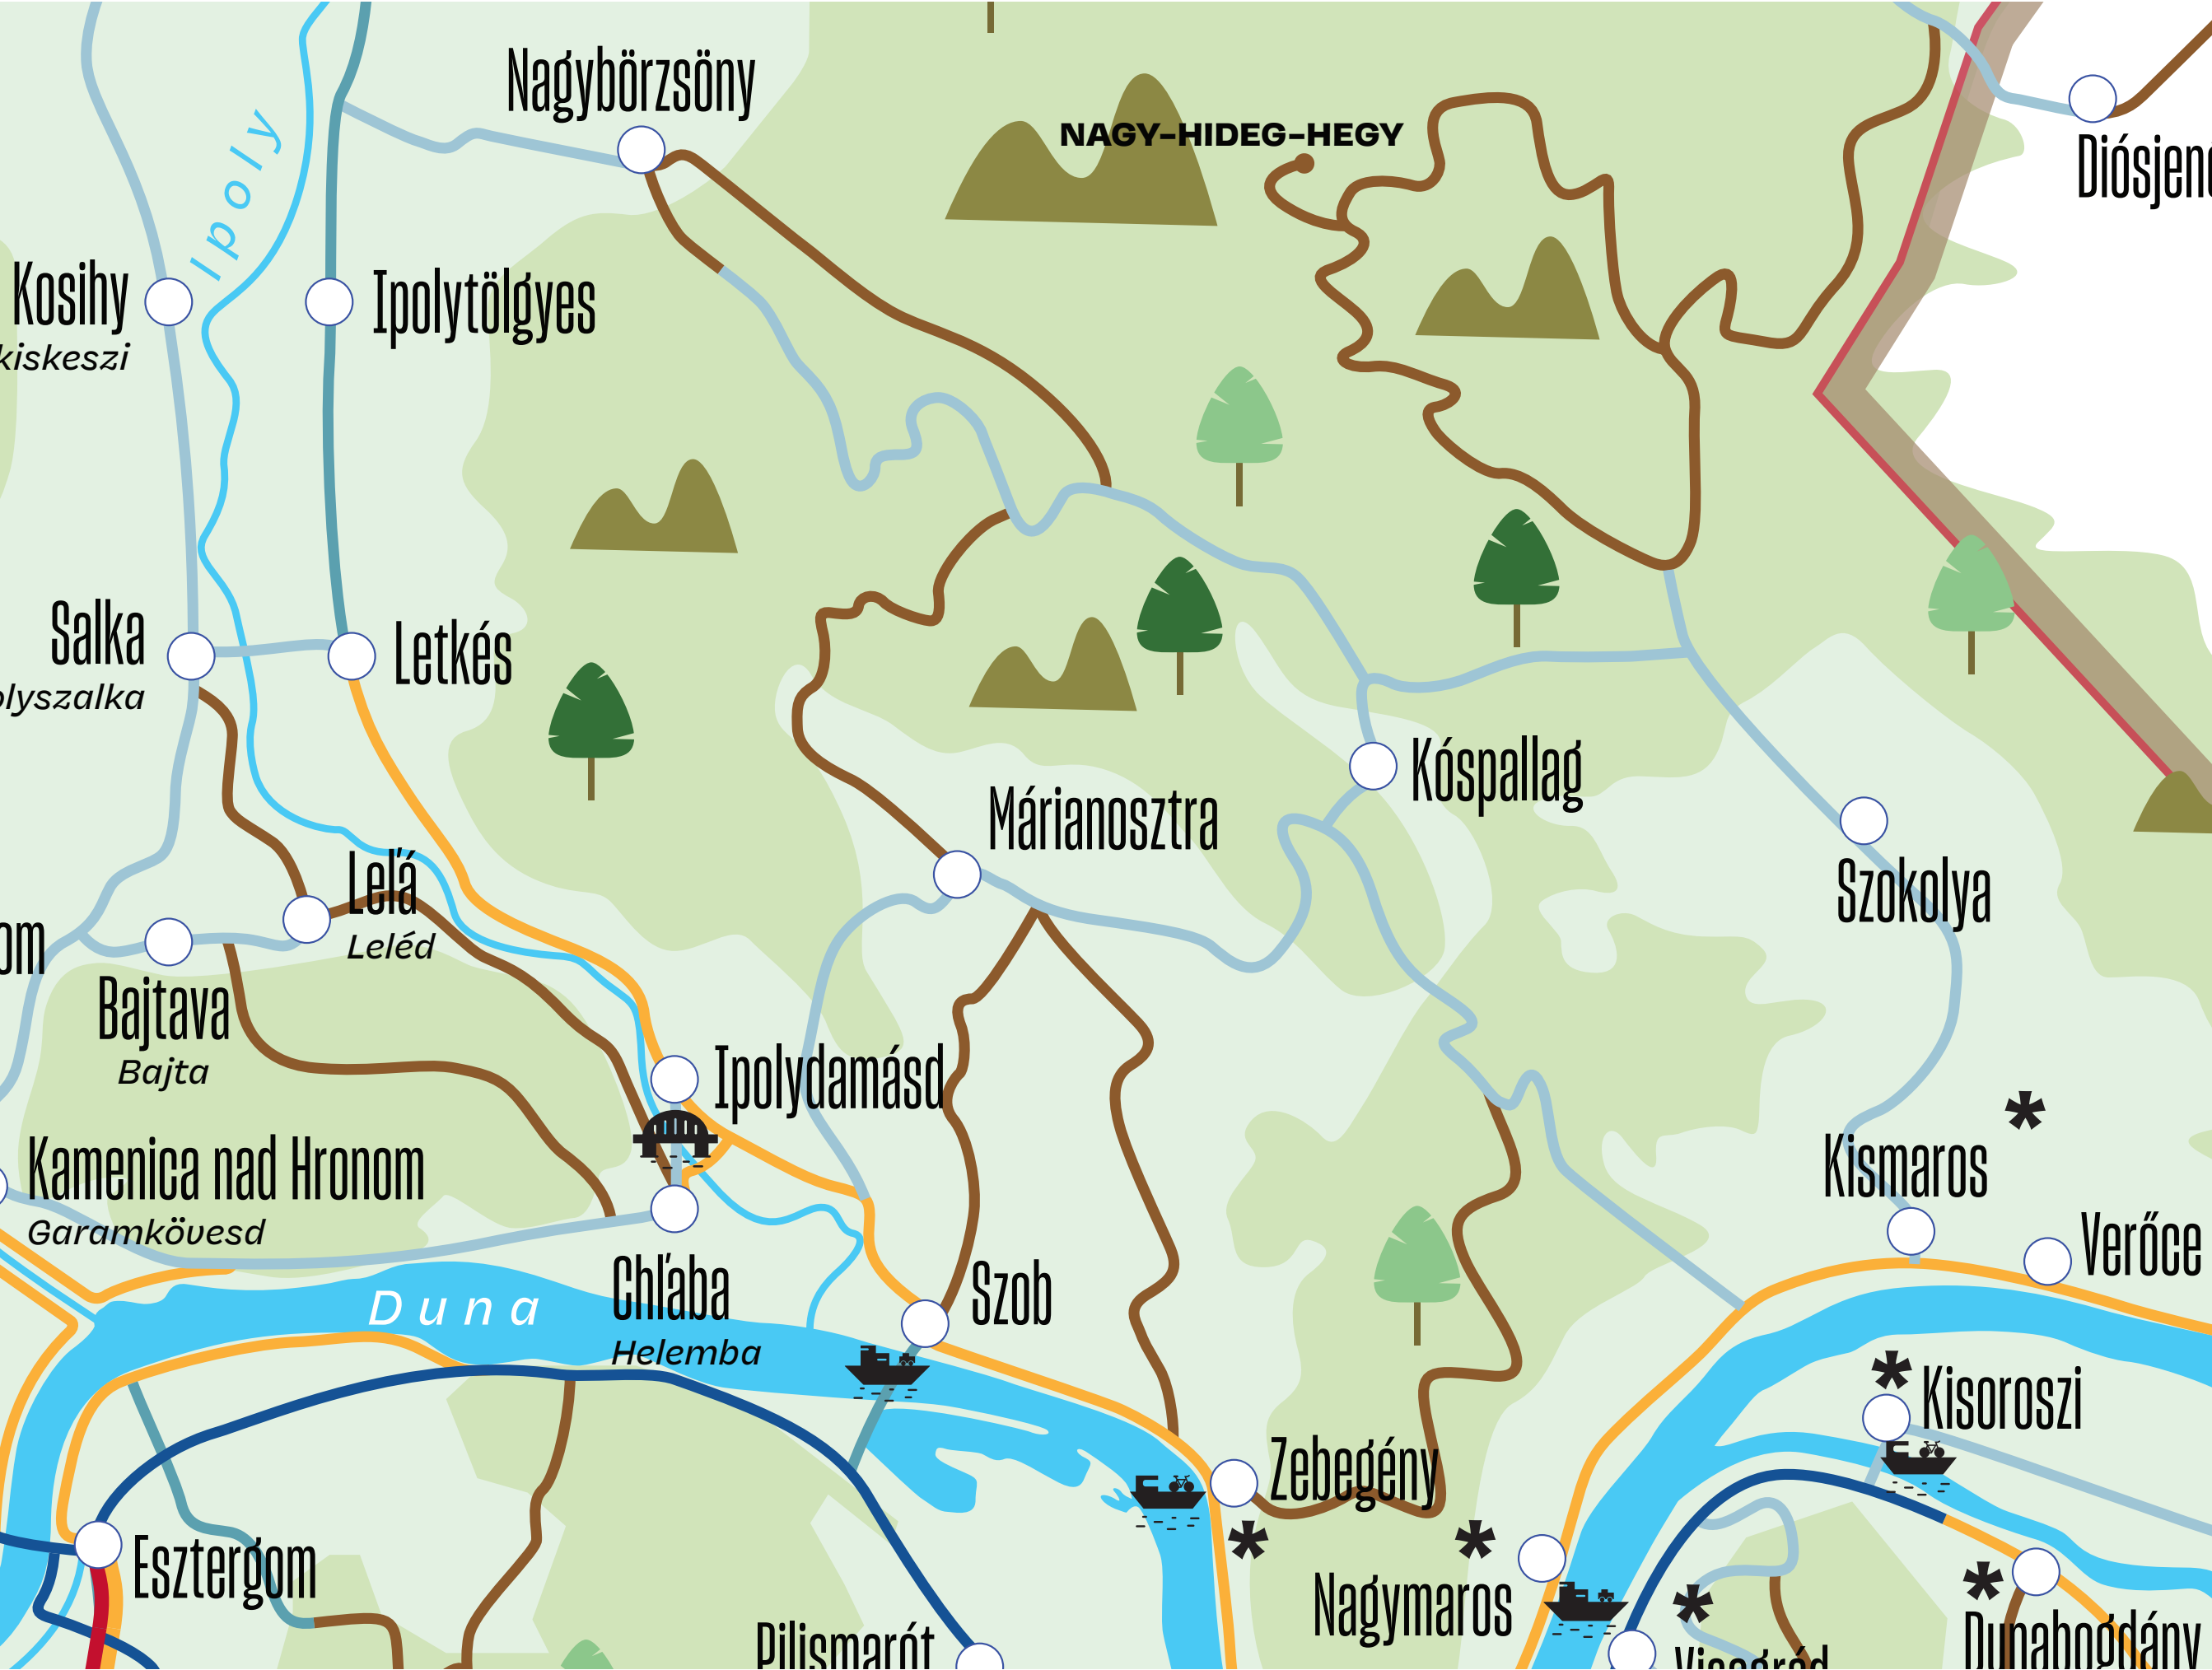

The last stop on the tour is Zebegeény. It's worth going up to the Kós Károly Lookout for a breathtaking panorama of the Danube. See the Slovak and Swabian farmhouses, the Rock Cave at the foot of Mount Calvary and the Roman Catholic church dedicated to Our Lady of the Snow, built in 1910.

+ 1 tip

At the end of the one-day tour, sample the specialities of the Monarchy Rete House in Zebegény! The home-made delicacies have a serious fan base, so it's worth walking down Kossuth road to the meadow house on the banks of the stream.
